Owner and Jockey Hurt in Steeplechase for Hunters.

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 19.-The Patapsco. Steeplechase, for hunters, while it fur-nished one of the prettiest contests seen in some time, came very near ending seriously for two of the riders in the race. A colored rider, named Jackson, who had the mount on Synchronized, received a very nasty fall when his mount went down and rolled on top of him, so that he was knocked out for a con-siderable length of time and later taken siderable length of time and later taken to the hospital, although it is said he will be able to be about in a few days. Mr. Black, who rode his own horse, Bracing Breeze, also received quite a fall when his horse threw him, and he was also knocked out, but came to in a short time, and havend a court the horse. short time, and beyond a cut in the head is said to be all right.

The seven events run off furnished sport of the very best kind, while every race went to a well-backed horse. Montcalm was the good thing of the day, for after being played from 10 to 1 to 9 to 2, wen in a gallen.

Curley Brown of the Jacksonville track, was a visitor here to-day. He states that there will be a board of stewards at Jacksonville this winter. Horsemen will have the privilege of se-lecting two to act as paid stewards, W. P. Burch is spoken of as the man that will be chosen from the East. Sum-

$5.00 $5.00 THE WASHINGTON HERALD OPTIMIST CLUB.

Two Prizes of $5.00 Each.

Many of the members of the Optimist Club who have been out of town are returning and are greeting the club with contributions for our next Sunday's page, the subject of which, you will remember, is "Nature." Some of the contributors from whom we have not heard for many days are to be represented next Sunday and some of our faorite essayists are to be heard from once more. We are surely to have a page full of inspira-

the following Sunday, October 30, I have chosen a subject appropriate to the season:

AUTUMN DAYS.

The autumnal equinox has passed; summer is officially over, according to the calendar, and "the melancholy days have come, the saddest of the year." Skies are leaden at times, the clouds lower, seeming to shut the world in, as it were, and with the sound of falling leaves and the sight of the limbs of trees stretching gaunt and bare, there might be some excuse, perhaps, if the soul of man were a little depressed. Now is the season when it takes real optimism to look forward hopefully to the days that are to come. It is the time of year that fits the words of Celia Thaxter:

There is no color in the world,

Few, indeed, are the spirits that rise superior to the conditions wrought by this season of the year. We are constituted, most of us, that chameleon-like, we take our mental and our soul color from the things about us; as the earth is gray and sodden, the rustle of the dead leaves about our feet, and the mists of the autumn rain beats upon our faces; so the spirit that is within us seems to be affected, and our moods have been interpreted by the poet:

The Wind means in the Wood,
The leaf drops from the Tree;
The cold rain falls on the grace of the The cold mist comes up from the Sea.

How do they affect you, fellowoptimists, these autumn days? Have you that brave optimistic spirit that enables you to see beyond the horizon of gloom to the days when sunshine shall come again? If so, dear friends, tell us the thought that inspires you; that help to find the true lesson of life in these autumn

It is a subject that should be an inspiration to discuss; it should be an inspiration to all of us to learn what each of us has to say.

For the best essays on the subject of "Autumn Days" The Washington Herald will award two prizes of $5 each.

Contributions should be sent in not later than noon of Wednesday, October 26. Trusting that this subject will appeal to all of you; that none of you will fail to read the fine page next Sunday, and wishing you all a happy

HANG BUNCH OF CREPE ON MURPHY'S DOOR

Chlengo, Oct. 19 .- Disgruntled Cub fans, who neither received reservations for the world's series games on the West Side, nor their cheeks back, stormed the offices of Charles W. Murphy in the Corn Exchange National Bank Building, to-day in an effort to get some satisfaction. As has been the case for several days past, they found the door locked, but they had considerable tamusement in gazing on the decoration found adorning the door of the Cubs' sanctum sanctorum.

Some early wag, whether from anger or sympathy, had invested in a bunch of crepe, which was attached to the door securely enough to withstand an ordinary pull. Attempts on the part of the office employes to remove the badge of mourning, were frustrated by the fans who camped out in front of the offices. After fruitless efforts, janitors, elevator men, and others connected with the building, gave up the onesided fight and left the scene of battle to the check-seekers.

THE CLOCK.

I liked to watch the good old clock that hung upon the wall; I really think a man might walk from Cleveland to St. Paul, and not behold a smoother piece of skillful craftsmanship; the wheels went round as slick as grease, and never made a slip. I dearly loved for hours to stand and watch the pendulum; and note the active minute hand, and hear the fly 'eel hum. I liked to hear the blamed thing strike-but on one fateful day, the boss remarked: "You better hike-you are not worth your hay. You're paid to help sell my stock, and do some other chores, but all the day you watch the clock, so chase yourself out loors." And then he pushed me with his feet, and fanned me with a chair, and when I landed in the street my shoes were in the 2'r. O, clocks are fascinating things, and they have lovely works, and pendulums and hands and springs, but they are bad for clerks, who yield to their seductive charm, and watch the hands go round, and listen to the loud alarm, and hear the striker pound, WALT MASON.

background flashing the various interesting lights of the iron and steel in-dustries as they exist in the modern life of to-day. The theme is said to be most entertaining, as it is principally most entertaining, as it is principally comedy and music, dealing with a descendant of an old Irish family of steel workers, Neil O'Donnell by name, who is visiting his mill interest at Pittsburg, and his conversion through the magic influence of love to believe in the rights and privileges due those whom he employs

Interspersed throughout the action of the play are a number of songs, which are said to thrill and delight with their melodious setting, thus offering a musical diversion of rare merit. Among the song hits may be mentioned, "Heart Strings," "Cupid's Wireless," "Oh, that Waltz!" "The Song of the Heart," and "The Girl We Leave at Home," with many duets and concerted numbers by mempers of the cast.

Frank Adair heads the cast, assisted by a company, among whom may be mentioned Charles A. Loder, M. J. Jordon, Walsh Temple, Irma La Pierre, Marjory Faurbanks, Mary Green, and Leonia
